Students stand up for rights

by Katie Simmons
News staff writer

Professor may have violated procedures for evaluations

At least two University students believe a business management professor violated their right to a fair and confidential course evaluation last semester.

Students from Sherry Sullivan's human resource management class, speaking anonymously because they fear academic repercussions, said Sullivan distributed the evaluation forms as early as the Tuesday before Thanksgiving break - with more than half of the points administered in the class still outstanding. The evaluation usually takes place during the last week of classes.

No action has been taken against Sullivan by the College of Business or the University administration.

"We realized why she was being so unusually nice to us that day when she passed out the evaluation papers," a male student said. "She then remained in the room and stood behind students as they filled out the forms, right behind me in particular."

A female student said she went so far as to try to change her style of handwriting in order to give a more truthful evaluation.

After five minutes, Sullivan allegedly rushed to collect the evaluations, causing some students to frantically finish their opinions and not fully complete their desired comments.

Choosing a student to bring the evaluations up to the designated office, both sources said Sullivan proceeded to escort the student directly to the office.

"My understanding is that no one was in the office when the student delivered the evaluation packet because it was lunch hour," the male student said. "After the student left the office, professor Sullivan remained in the office with the evaluations."

Sources from the class said Fred Williams, dean of the College of Business, advised the students that a re-evaluation was not necessary because the students had brought their complaints directly to him.

Students then took initial steps to let their complaints be heard by writing letters of protest to Williams and Eloise Clark, vice president of academic affairs.

"I felt the students should go to the instructor first," Williams said. "If nothing is resolved at that level, the next person would be the department chairperson. If that is not satisfactory to the problem, it continues straight up the line with the dean and so on."

Both Sullivan and James McFillan, chairman of the management department, refused

Alleged Evaluation Violations

- ✓ Remaining in the room and standing behind students throughout the evaluation procedure.
- ✓ Not providing ample time and a relaxed, professional atmosphere for the evaluations.

BSU offers play, other programs

by Melissa Lipowski
News staff writer

In the continuing theme of Black History Month, the Black Student Union will be hosting the fourth annual African Holocaust Conference next weekend.

The event, which is being promoted by the BSU as the event of the year, will feature the play "Slaveship," directed by Deanna Thomas of the University theatre department next Friday at 7 p.m.

The play, written by Amiri Baraka, will feature the experiences of African-Americans aboard slave ships during their journey to America, said Samuel X. Jackson, president of the BSU.

"The production is a close reenactment of the different events and atrocities that occurred on the ships," Jackson said.

Abdul Alim Muhammad will address the topic of the AIDS virus among the African-American community Saturday Feb. 12 at 2 p.m., Jackson said.

Muhammad believes that if the AIDS virus continues to flourish among the African-American community at the current rate, the community will be endangered, he said.

Muhammad hopes that through the experimental drug, ImmuViron, and continuing to educate the African-American community, the AIDS epidemic can be controlled, he said.

ImmuViron is a naturally produced drug that attacks the AIDS virus rather than merely treating the symptoms, he said. Muhammad has reported that through his experimentation with the drug, he has seen a reversal of the symptoms in those who are treated in the disease's early stages.

"If the treatment is approved, the drug has the potential of riding the world of the AIDS epidemic," he said.

In addition to the other events, Ava Muhammad will be speaking about male and female relationships in the segment, "Real Love," next Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

Ava Muhammad addressed University students last year and was requested by students to speak again this year, Jackson said.

All of the events are open to the public and are to take place in the Community Suite and the Ohio Suite on the third floor of the University Union, he said.

"The entire Bowling Green campus is encouraged to come and attend," he said.

Senator promises to make difference

by Jonathan Broadfoot
News staff writer

Senator Robert Burch has promised to do what Gov. George Voinovich has failed to do: keep tuition costs stable.

Burch spoke to the enthusiastic Democratic Committee at the Holley Lodge Thursday night on issues dealing with the upcoming November election for governor.

Burch, D-Ohio, the Democratic candidate for the upcoming gubernatorial race, said that the latest tuition increases prevent high school students from continuing on in their education.

"Ohio must stop cutting funding not only for primary education, but higher education as well," Burch said.

With health care a continuing concern with Ohioans, Burch took President Clinton's stance and said that "the government must provide health care for every man, woman and child."

Burch feels that solving the health care problem would be the best job to decrease unemployment.

U.S. ends trade embargo

by George Gedda
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Moving to ease an emotional legacy from a divisive war, President Clinton on Thursday lifted the 19-year U.S. trade embargo against Vietnam.

Clinton said he was taking the step convinced that it will further efforts to get a full accounting of the Americans missing in Vietnam.

"We would lose leverage if there were no forward movement," Clinton said. He said in recent months there had been much progress in accounting for 2,238 American MIAs and POWs in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

Vietnam is one of Asia's fastest-growing markets and nearly all other Western countries that had once joined in the embargo have re-established commercial ties with the communist nation.

American businesses have pressed for an end to the embargo.

"I want to be clear. These actions do not constitute a normalization of our relationship. We must have more progress, more cooperation and more answers," Clinton said.

Clinton also said he would establish a U.S. liaison office.

Clinton made the announcement after meeting with representatives of the families of soldiers still missing in action. Many veterans groups preferred that he keep the embargo in place to encourage continued Vietnamese cooperation accounting for missing servicemen.

Clinton said: "I am absolutely convinced it offers the best way to resolve the fate of those who remain missing and about those about whom we are not sure," Clinton said.

Clinton's efforts to avoid military service during the Vietnam War made his decision all the more sensitive. Clinton said that every American of his age knew someone who died or was wounded in the fighting.

Clinton said his decision was guided by progress in four key areas:

□ Recovery of remains of American soldiers in Vietnam. Clinton said that since last July, remains of 39 American servicemen had been recovered.

□ Resolution of "discrepancy cases" in which there was reason to believe people could have survived. Clinton said that since July, the number of such cases had been reduced from 135 to 73.

□ Further assistance from Vietnam and Laos in conducting searches along their common border. The first such investigation took place in December and located new remains and crash sites, Clinton said.

□ Release of any documents from Vietnam that could shed light on the fate of those still missing.

E.A.R. to the Ground ...

A sixteen-year-old Tiffin Columbian High School student was recently suspended for 10 days because he had a live grenade in his locker. Apparently, the young Rambo was given the ordnance by another high schooler who had recently been in possession of a similar explosive, but he already had used it in an attack on a defenseless, empty field. It is speculated there are still six other grenades in circulation.

We at E.A.R. believe Tiffin High should take a page out of Toledo's book, "How To Trade Weapons of Mass Destruction for Gift Certificates." Tiffin High should start a program called "A's for grenades," or maybe "Hall Passes for explosives."

The year is still young, but we have our first candidate for the E.A.R.1994 Rutting Pig Award: Rep. Martin Hoke (R-Ohio).

It seems Hoke couldn't stop drooling on himself after laying eyes on news producer Lisa Dwyer, who videotaped his comments on the State of the Union speech. "She has the biggest breasts," he remarked to a fellow congressman and, to his embarrassment, the video camera.

We at E.A.R. Central think our state representative should try lusting for things like economic revitalization and leave his adolescent yearnings at home. As Confucius said: "Man who talks through fly gets tongue stuck in zipper."

There is a rumor that the residents of Buffalo have changed their area code to 0-4-4. How could the players face going back to their beloved city, for the fourth time, with nothing to show but a 15-point loss? How could the residents of Buffalo allow the Bills back into the city?

How many times are the Bills going to travel out to the Super Bowl and lose? E.A.R. to the Ground suggests if Buffalo makes it to Super Bowl No. 5 they should get those kids with the grenades from Tiffin High to travel with the other team.

Corn flakes on our potatoes

Plus unionization, condoms and sub-wonkians gone mad

Obviously, everything good that has ever happened in our country is the direct result of the Republican Party, whereas liberals are solely responsible for divorce, which of course leads to abortions, the slaughtering of the elderly and homosexuality. Liberal policies also directly lead to crack, which is a ghetto drug.

Whoa! It's Friday, not Monday! What is Rick Hackbarth's column doing in here? Leave this place and wait your turn! It's time for Sam and Mike, baby!

The goal of this week's column is to make enough irreverent little comments about current events to fill up this page, so we can go back to bed. We'll put the general themes in bold so this will look more like a gossip column, which is what we really want to write.

The greatest thing to happen this week, obviously, is the triumphant return of Dutchess Potatoes to the Prout Cafeteria. Beautifully sliced potatoes nestled in a warm blanket of cheese and onions, sprinkled with corn flakes. Yes! Corn flakes! It sounds absurd, but it is heavenly. We feel such an incredible sense of joy and rapture that we were going to devote an entire column to Dutchess Potatoes. But we have other items that we need to address.

Like Condom Nation. Our sources say one of these stores may be coming to our fair little College Town. Surprisingly, we don't have any smart little comment to make about it, we're just relaying information, because we're journalists.

From the "You Guys Should

Sam & Mike
Melendez & Cook

The goal of this week's column is to make enough irreverent little comments about current events to fill up this page.

Write A Column About That" file. Faculty Unionization. Most classes are way too big and if professors think a union could help, let 'em vote to start one.

Besides, Paul Olscamp and a bunch of USG puppets are against it, so we figure it's probably a good thing.

Speaking of good things, the Academy Awards are coming up pretty soon, which prompts an idea for the First Semi-interactive Sam and Mike Column. This column will hold its own local version of an awards ceremony. Awards will be given for things like Most Disturbing Local Trend of the Year, Late Shift Waiter/Waitress of the Year, Angriest Cup of Coffee in BG, and of course, the coveted Local Bonehead of the Year award.

We want your input. Send your ideas for award categories and nominees to Sam and Mike's Mailbox, 210 West Hall.

THREE SIGNS OF SPRING.

No. 1. Last Saturday, we pushed the Speed Dial as hard as we could, but we were unable to land tickets for the First Cleveland Indians Game at Gateway. So, if you have tickets, why not take us? In return, we can get you anything you need. Anything. We know people who know people. You see, we're columnists, and we're very powerful people.

No. 2. If you step outside the University Union and stand very still, you can feel the disturbance in the air. You can almost sense others over-exaggerating their own self-importance. Bad things are happening, man. Bad things.

USG elections are coming up. Sub-wonkians with ambition set loose, tripping over each other in a mad scramble for the prize that is Jason T. Jackson's Throne. As columnists, we are so looking forward to the antics of a college version of Buckeye Boys/Girls State campaign gone completely mad that we could just vomit with excitement.

This will certainly provide the coveted Column Ideas. Ads read "This Year USG Spent Over 32,000 of Your Student Dollars!" Yes, and that's just the problem now, isn't it?

No.3. Last week we wrote of East Merry Madness. Based on your blank stares, we realize now that most of you are too new to have experienced it. Well, close your eyes and imagine a warm Friday night in April. Now imagine sharing that experience with literally thousands of college kids from here and elsewhere.

Basically, it was OU's Halloween without the costumes. And the next night, the kids moved a couple of streets over and called it Frazee Frenzy. Anyway, this whole thing died a couple of years ago. Everything dies, baby, that's a fact. But maybe everything that dies someday comes back. Our sources tell us the block party will come back on April 22-23.

And before we leave for another week...

Our friends at Take a Stand! and WBGU 88.1 FM are sponsoring the 3rd annual AIDS Benefit Concert at Howard's Club H on Wednesday, Feb. 23. More on this important event later. And the bands played on...

Sam Melendez and Mike Cook are weekly columnists for The BG News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Republicans have known it for a long time

The BG News:

I must say I am very happy to finally see someone in the media, as trivial a channel of media as The News may be, finally recognizing and revealing the President of the United States for what he really is. Rick Hackbarth's column in the Jan. 31 issue was an exceptional piece of journalism.

I totally agree with the underlying theme of the article, that President Clinton has realized what's good for America and what the American people want is what the Republicans have been pursuing for quite some time. Clinton was able to slick his way into the White House through waffling and appealing to emotion, but he's realized the only real solutions to America's problems are found in the family unit. So now we find our beloved President valiantly taking on these issues as their original leader.

I find it quite ironic when Vice President Quayle (yes, the Wavy Lays VP) said exactly the same things, but used the name of a fictional television character, he was harshly chastised by the very people applauding Clinton. I wonder if Clinton would have mentioned any specific examples if he too would have been brought to the chopping block. I think not.

I hope America is realizing that constantly expanding government to accommodate the lazy, irresponsible and unethical lifestyles of those Americans living off the system just isn't going to solve the problem. We must encourage the value of family living and constantly cherish the gift of life.

No need for cable's Univision

The BG News

I resent the LSU and People for Racial Justice committee for an obvious attempt to turn a business issue into an issue of discrimination. I have seen Univision hundreds of times; I used to subscribe to a system that carried the channel.

There is absolutely no educational value for the channel whatsoever, apart from learning to hear and translate the Spanish language. Despite Smitherman's suggestion the channel would promote "cross-cultural exploration," Univision simply does not accurately depict the Latino culture. It only shows a poor attempt to copy more popular networks' styles. The ridiculous soap operas and variety shows aren't entertaining.

It would be obvious, after more than five years of trying to obtain the channel, the demand simply isn't there. "There is such a large demand for the addition of the channel," Fernandez said. Where are the numbers? Has he conducted a survey? How many people on his staff have actually seen Univision? My bet would be few, as the Univision experience isn't worth five years of bickering.

Wood County Cable is not a huge corporation. They have families and bills like everyone else. I'm sure they have done more research into the profitability of Univision than the LSU and the People for Racial Justice. Personally I don't want to pay for yet another useless channel and I believe the majority of cable subscribers agree with me.

The BG News:

Among the putative experts brought to our campus by the local AAUP in their current union organizing blitz was one on "Communication." Said expert's opinion was quoted liberally on the first page of Jan. 28BG News. I noted, with interest, that the expert's venue was "The University of Kansas at Omaha."

Local AAUP types would promise most anything to get a positive faculty vote, but seriously, do Lundy/Stoner et al really expect anybody to believe they could move Kansas to Omaha?

repeated requests to comment on the incident.

Clark, said she believes the matter should be resolved within the department.

"Faculty have generally considered it a strong prerogative to have the evaluation process handled at the departmental level," Clark said. "I'm guessing there may be a generally understood procedure, but it may not be written down."

Williams said the evaluation procedure should coincide with the literature concerning the process.

"There are many characteristics involved. There should be ample time to administer the session and it should be a relaxed, yet professional atmosphere," he said.

"The person being evaluated should not be in the room and it should occur far enough into the course where reasonable assessment can occur - not too early or late or before or after an examination," Williams added. "The environment should not affect what the students have to say."

Williams said student evaluations are necessary in the process of rating a course's instructor, an action which leads directly to the determination of whether tenure will be awarded.

"Although the evaluations are not the only source of information used for rating a course and the course's instructor, it is a necessary and very, very good source in this case," he said.

ment rate in Ohio, and plans to pursue it until the end.

Tomorrow is Burch's main focus, unlike his counterpart's focus on yesterday, and the present. "There are no magic wand options," he stated. "We have the answers Ohioans want."

Burch feels his approach is different than Voinovich's because he plans to get the job done. "The last three years can be categorized as three years of failure, mismanagement and misplaced priority," Burch said.

This winning approach involves three steps.

☆ He plans to go to the people directly for input.☆ Then taking this input he plans to decrease unemployment, and decrease the poverty level.

☆ Finally Burch will make an effort to increase income levels for all his constituents.

"Ohioans want someone who can stand up, talk straight and offer solutions," Burch said. "The Teflon governor is getting away with painting a phony picture."

Al Baldwin, president of the local democratic committee, said Burch is a real fighter.

"We are dealing with a man who says he is a manager. We need a leader and I think Robert Burch is the man for the job," Baldwin said.

Burch wants to be a credible alternative to voters in Ohio. "We want to be the alternative that voters will turn to," Burch said.

"This campaign is about ideas, not who buys the most TV spots."

Clinton eats well

WASHINGTON -- President Clinton and German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, a pair of world leaders with a world class fondness for food, had lunch at an Italian restaurant known for its hearty portions.

Both had dessert and then ordered a chocolate cake to take with them.

"There they are! There they are," Clinton exclaimed Monday, pointing at the two pasta makers stationed in the storefront window as he and Kohl walked into the restaurant.

"Hi, Mr. President!" said the women, Carolina Gleason and Elena Ditoto, who stopped cutting ravioli to shake the leaders' hands.

"Hi, Pasta Momma!" Clinton said to Gleason, "Hi, Pasta Momma!" Clinton said to Ditoto.

The pasta makers are known affectionately at the restaurant as pasta mommas.

Would be assassin headed for psych ward

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) A 23-year-old student accused of firing blanks at Prince Charles has been admitted to a prison psychiatric ward.

David Kang was arrested Jan. 26 at an outdoor ceremony where the prince was about to give a speech to 10,000 people celebrating Australia's national day.

Kang ran from the crowd, fired two blanks from a starter's pistol and got within a few feet of the prince before being wrestled to the ground by security guards and others.

Charles, who ends a 12-day tour of Australia on Thursday, was not hurt.

Kang, a university student in Sydney, faces six charges and could be imprisoned for a maximum of 17 years if convicted.

Woods talks of learning

Associate professor tells why she continues to come back

by Cynthia Kent
News staff writer

After 25 years of teaching at the University, Bonadine Woods said she still learns more from the campus every year. And it's what keeps her coming back every fall.

"When I started here, I had no plans of staying, but the stimulation to always want to learn more for the students kept me coming back each fall," said Woods, an applied human ecology associate professor. "They really keep you on your toes."

Woods was teaching at Anthony Wayne High School in Lucasville when a position opened up at the University.

"I had many student teachers from Bowling Green [while at Anthony Wayne] so I became more familiar with the school and the teachers," Woods said. "Eventually, a chairman asked me to interview for a job opening [at the University] and here I am 25 years later."

Although she was not planning to stay on the faculty long, she said she was interested by the challenges and changes her job brought. She said 25 years spent teaching at the University have gone quickly due to new teaching guidelines, the constant challenge of being prepared for the students and the changing academic environment.

"The years have never been repetitive and the people I worked with over the years have been wonderful," Woods said.

Vicki Liebrecht, president of Interior Design, describes Woods as "excellent," and an "extraordinary person and teacher."

"She always goes the extra mile for you," Liebrecht said. "She is a top-notch professional."

Not only did Woods change the lives of many young students in the classroom, she prepared the students for their careers after graduation.

"She really instilled how to be a professional and how to handle yourself in the job market," Lie-

"I'm not teaching for the salary or fringe benefits. It's the stimulation from the students and the new challenges that I face each year that keep me coming back each fall."

Bonadine Woods, applied human ecology associate professor brecht said. "Above all, she taught respect."

Teaching has not been just a job for Woods, the 25 years spent at the University, according to Woods, have been a great experience.

"I'm not teaching for the salary or fringe benefits," Woods said. "It's the stimulation from the students and the new challenges that I face each year that keep me coming back each fall."

As a teacher, it is obvious to the students if teachers like their jobs, Woods said. In order to succeed in a teaching career he or she must be teaching for personal reasons, she added.

"I like what I do," Woods said. "I can't imagine being in a place where I don't."

ASC discusses union, equality

by Leah Barnum
News staff writer

Concerns about University President Paul Olscamp's possible retirement, collective bargaining and the gender equality study were addressed by Olscamp's executive assistant at Administrative Staff Council meeting Tuesday.

Although Lester Barber said he cannot legally say too much about collective bargaining, he said at this point he does not know which way the vote will go.

"It appears to us that faculty are generally not talking about the issue," Barber said. "I don't have a clue [whether it will pass]."

The results of the collective bargaining vote will be released the evening of Feb. 10.

Barber also discounted rumors that Olscamp is planning on retiring at the end of this academic year.

The soonest Olscamp may retire will be the end of the 1994-95 school year, Barber said, adding that there is no official word.

About the gender equity salary study, Barber said that it is not finished yet, and that he agrees with most of it.

However, Barber said he disagrees with the provision that calls for all female faculty members' salaries to be raised to the mean of the males' salaries of each department by rank.

"In my opinion it might even be illegal," he said. "It might provoke grievances -- maybe even lawsuits -- from male faculty."

Also at the meeting:

□ A proposal to change the bi-laws concerning the selection of committee chairpersons was adopted. Now instead of committee members electing their chairs, the chairs will be appointed by the chairperson of the ASC.

The Honors Program and the Honors Student Association will sponsor their 12th annual Tuition Raffle on March 17.

The grand prize is a paid semester's tuition, a value worth nearly $1800. Other prizes include three $150 book scholarships and 100 Pisanello's Pizza coupons.

The raffle is open to any student at the University who is registered for at least one credit hour, according to Beth Kreusch, adviser to the Honor's Student Association.

"All the prizes are useful," Kreusch said. "The students win all around."

To encourage participation in the raffle, the Honors Student Association is sending information along with one free raffle ticket to the parents of all registered students at the University.

"We would love to give away more money," Kreusch said.

HSA Scholarship

- The Drawing: March 17 at noon in the Falcon's Nest.
- Possible Prizes: Grand prize, a semester's worth of free tuition. Also, three $150 book scholarships and 100 coupons for Pisanello's Pizza
- Ticket Info: Sales begin Feb. 21 for $1 each in the University's Student Union.

"But the more success we have this year, the more money we can give away next year."

All money collected in the raffle goes toward the J. Robert Bashore Scholarship, the former Honors Director. The scholarships are designed to reward students who are pursuing a liberal education.

Writers will be rewarded

by Robin Cope
News staff writer

The Writers Foundation and the Bank Of America will co-sponsor the fifth annual America's Best competition, which will reward excellent writers of various mediums.

Robert Cope, president of The Writers Foundation, said the competition was formed to recognize new writers and open opportunities to them. The foundation is dedicated to supporting and encouraging writers and showing the importance of writers in society.

The competition has included film, television, comedy writing, poetry and novel writing categories in the past. Short fiction and children's picture books writing categories were added to this year's competition, Cope said.

Cash awards, studio visits to television shows and the opportunity to have material read by producers will be awarded to winners in the competitions.

Cope said he encourages all writers to enter the competition because there may be awards even if their work is not selected. "They may not win, but an agent might want to represent them," he said. "That's what we like to see happen," he said.

The purpose of the competition goes beyond finding winners to recognizing writers, he said. It is important to find agents who will represent a writer's work and sometimes difficult. The competition makes it easier for writers to find agents and agents to find good writers.

HBO will air "State of Emergency" written by the winner of 1990's competition Susan Black sometime this month. "Blackbird Moon," a screenplay Black wrote, will begin shooting later this year and the comedy "Patsy Goes to Hollywood" will be shot in England. Her participation in the competition is the reason for her sudden success.

Television programs are taking part in the competition by judging material.

America's Best

- The Deadline: March 26, 1994. Applications and information may be obtained by sending a self-addressed business sized envelope to: The Writer's Foundation, 1801 Burnet Ave., Syracuse, NY 13206.
- Possible Prizes: Cash awards, studio visits to television shows and the opportunity to have material read by producers.

Optimism needed to find job

The College Press Service

For new college graduates, now may be the time to update your resumes and interview clothes -- there are plenty of jobs out there for the taking.

But then again, perhaps you should make plans to move back home and leech off mom and dad until the job outlook improves.

Are there jobs out there? It depends on whom you want to believe.

The bright news: an increase in hiring is projected in 1994 for new college graduates, according to the 23rd annual edition of Recruiting Trends, a Michigan State University report.

The bad news: The outlook is bleak and recent graduates are going to face stiff competition for jobs, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's Occupational Outlook Quarterly.

The more reassuring survey for graduates, researched by Michigan State, reported a 1.1 percent increase in the hiring over last year. This is the first increase projected in the past five years.

In addition to an increase in jobs, starting salaries are expected to be .4 percent higher than last year, Recruiting Trends said. The highest anticipated increases are for majors in chemistry, computer science, industrial, civil and mechanical engineering, mathematics and accounting.

According to the Research Trends survey, several fields are emerging with vast opportunities for employment. Among the rising occupations reported by the surveyed companies are computer-related fields, business systems analysts, environmental engineers and scientists, health-care and medical specialists and communications and multi-media specialists.

The highest starting salaries for graduates with bachelor's degrees are chemical engineering majors at $40,300.

Drunken driving laws may be strengthened

by John Chalfant
The Associated Press

COLUMBUS -- Gov. George Voinovich urged legislators Thursday to strengthen laws against drunken driving through a change in the blood alcohol standard by which motorists are presumed under the influence.

Voinovich's support for lowering the standard from the current 0.10 percent to 0.08 percent came after he signed into law a separate bill that sets an even lower limit of 0.02 percent for all drivers under age 21.

Voinovich said he would not recommend the 0.02 percent level for all drivers but that it was appropriate for young adults.

"That is a policy issue that at the age of 21 people are more capable of exercising better judgment than people who are younger," Voinovich said at a news conference.

Sen. Betty Montgomery, R-Perrysburg, introduced a bill in the Senate last year to lower the limit for other drivers to 0.08 percent. The proposal is awaiting a hearing. She said she would continue to push for her bill.

Montgomery welcomed Voinovich's support but said there may not be time to consider the proposal in the Senate Judiciary Committee because of a heavy agenda that includes anti-crime bills. She said those bills might have much less opposition than her proposal.

Voinovich signed into law a bill that sponsoring Sen. Anthony Sinagra, R-Lakewood, said would close a loophole dealing with blood alcohol levels for young drivers.

Currently, the limit is 0.02 percent for drivers 16 to 18 years old. The limit for people 18 to 21 is 0.10 percent, even though both groups are under the state's legal drinking age of 21.

Sinagra said the two age groups should not be treated differently.

Voinovich said another anti-drunken driving law that took effect Sept. 1 is paying dividends.

Motorists who fail a sobriety test lose their driver's licenses on the spot. Repeat offenders face vehicle impoundment and forfeiture.

Since Sept. 1, the state has suspended 15,786 licenses for 90 days because of motorists who failed alcohol tests. Another 5,775 drivers had licenses

The New Law

- Sets the blood alcohol level for drivers 18, 19 and 20 years old at 0.02 percent.
- Violators face driver license suspension of at least 60 days and not more than two years, and assessment of four points on driving records.
- Violators are required to take a remedial driving course before they can get their license back.
- Requires that a person convicted of providing alcohol to a minor be fined at least $500.

ses suspended for one year after refusing to take the test. About 2,700 vehicles were immobilized, and 156 forfeited.

Voinovich said a preliminary report for 1993 showed 400 people were killed in traffic accidents related to alcohol, compared with 510 in 1992.

The Ohio Department of Public Safety said drivers ages 16 to 20 were responsible for 80 of the 510 alcohol-related fatalities in 1992.

Employees file lawsuit

Workers opposed to smoking ban in buildings

DAYTON -- Workers opposed to a smoking ban in local government buildings filed a lawsuit Thursday that claimed they are the victims of discrimination.

The lawsuit was filed in U.S. District Court by Debbie Isbel, Mannu Ball and Jule Randolph, who work in a snack bar in the Montgomery County courts building. The suit listed the city of Dayton and Montgomery County as defendants.

The lawsuit said smoking in city and county buildings once was permitted in designated areas such as lounges and cafeterias, but has since been banned altogether.

Congress ordered Veterans Administration hospitals to maintain indoor smoking areas for patients and to install air conditioners to remove smoke from those areas, the lawsuit said.

The lawsuit asked the court to order the city and county to provide ventilated, indoor smoking areas.

"We're not asking for anything expensive," said attorney Robert Renshaw, who represents the workers. "We're just asking for a room with some type of ventilation or some kind of smoke-killer that people can go to to smoke."

City Law Director Anthony Sawyer said he had not seen the lawsuit and would not comment.

The city's smoking ban went into effect last July following concerns about the effects of secondhand smoke, said Maria Oria, director of Dayton's department of central services.

Oria said smoke from the designated smoking areas would spread to other parts of the buildings.

"There was a lot of ambient smoke all around," she said. "We wanted to make sure our employees were protected."

She said the ban applies to City Hall, the police station, fire stations, water treatment plants and city vehicles. The city employs about 3,000 workers.

Oria said many businesses and shopping malls have imposed similar bans.

"We've done no more than what other buildings and other organizations have done," she said.

Montgomery County Commissioner Donna Moon said many county buildings have smoking bans, but not all. For example, the county administration building downtown permits smoking in the cafeteria, she said.

Moon said the county has banned smoking in its new buildings and does not have the space to provide smoking rooms.

The county employs about 3,000 people.

Smoker's suit

- Smoking in the city and county buildings once was permitted in designated areas such as lounges and cafeterias, but has since been banned altogether.
- According to the suit, this is in violation of a Congressional order which says indoor smoking areas must be allowed.
- The suit asks that the court order the city of Dayton to provide ventilated, indoor smoking areas.

Defense secretary named

by John Diamond
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- The Senate confirmed William Perry as defense secretary Thursday, turning over command of the Pentagon to a scholar, businessman and expert on high-tech weapons.

The 97-0 vote came slightly more than a week after President Clinton named Perry, until now the No. 2 man at the Pentagon, to replace Les Aspin.

"He does have the vision we need," said Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee. "He is totally committed to the security of this country."

Committee colleague John Warner, R-Va., predicted Perry would rank "among the finest" of the 19 people to hold the job since its creation after World War II.

The Pentagon was planning a swearing-in ceremony shortly.

Republican members of the Armed Services panel almost placed a hold on Perry's nomination because of their concerns about the administration policy on homosexuals in the military. After a hasty series of telephone calls between Perry and committee members, the Republicans decided against it.

"We came to the unanimous decision that it's too important a position to be held up," said Sen. Dan Coats, R-Ind.

"Some people have said he is not charismatic, that we need a charismatic secretary of defense. I disagree," Levin said. "We need somebody who has the experience to change the culture there."

"We must manage our budget a lot better," Levin said. "We can do that with Dr. Perry."

Armed Services Chairman Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said of Perry's testimony in his confirmation hearing Wednesday, "it was impressive and it was straightforward."

A farewell ceremony for Aspin was set for Friday.

Perry leaves Friday for a conference in Munich on defense issues. And next week he returns to Capitol Hill to present the administration's $264 billion defense spending plan. The administration had hoped Perry could make those appearances as the fully confirmed secretary.

Absent from the vote Thursday were Sens. John McCain, R-Ariz., Don Nickles, R-Okla. and Ted Stevens, R-Alaska.

Republicans charge that the administration's regulations on homosexuals in the military do not faithfully follow a law passed last year by Congress aimed at keeping a gay ban in place.

Under questioning Wednesday, Perry assured senators their concerns were being taken into account.

Perry rises from deputy defense secretary to the Pentagon's top job at a time when the military budget continues to decline from the Reagan-era peak during the mid-1980s.

The 66-year-old Stanford University engineering professor helped forge defense policy for the past year under Aspin and directed defense research under President Carter. He made his reputation in defense circles as the leading promoter of radar-evading stealth technology. He also became a millionaire as the founder of and consultant to defense contractors.

"History continues to be made every day, in the hills of Bosnia, the dusty streets of Somalia and North Korea," Perry said.

House votes for disaster relief for quake zone

by David Espo
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- Balancing compassion with concern for the deficit, the House voted $8.6 billion in disaster relief for the shattered Los Angeles earthquake zone on Thursday after approving a modest round of offsetting spending cuts elsewhere in the budget.

The vote was 337-74 to send the disaster relief bill -- the largest in the nation's history -- to the Senate for anticipated action next week. Congressional leaders hope to have the measure on President Clinton's desk by mid-month.

"It was really sort of beautiful what happened today," Rep. Don Edwards, California's senior lawmaker said as the state's delegation gathered to celebrate passage.

House passage came after a day of debate centered largely on whether and how much to shelter the deficit from the impact of the disaster bill.

On a nearly unanimous vote that belied a divided House, lawmakers agreed to $2.6 billion in cuts. Two proposals for deeper cuts were defeated, one on a narrow 211-207 vote.

"People need a helping hand," said Rep. Richard Durbin, Ill. "They don't need a congressional debate. We don't help them with protracted debate."

Rep. Jim Nussle, R-Iowa, said it was important to "set a priority to say we believe this emergency is more important than a few other lower priorities in the budget."

The measure includes $8.6 billion in grants and loans to victims of the earthquake; $1.2 billion for a variety of Pentagon peacekeeping operations; $435.5 million to continue clean-up from last summer's floods; and $315 million to repair a freeway damaged in a 1989 San Francisco earthquake.

It also authorizes Clinton to release $200 million in previously approved low income heating assistance money to states hardest hit by this winter's severe cold.

In addition, the measure bars long-term aid such as Small Business Administration loans to illegal immigrants, although it permits emergency aid such as food, medicine and shelter to anyone in need.

Government accountants said that without offsetting cuts, the bill would raise the deficit by $9.7 billion over several years.

Government accountants said that without offsetting cuts, the bill would raise the deficit by $9.7 billion over several years.

Despite losing their bid for dollar-for-dollar cuts to match the new spending, deficit hawks in the House claimed victory. Noting that previous disaster relief legislation has always been funded by deficit spending, Rep. Tim Penny, D-Minn., said the bill "sets an important precedent."

Several proposals for offsetting reductions competed for support, including one by Penny and others to cut $10 billion. It failed on a vote of 240-177. A smaller proposal to cut $7.5 billion was defeated by four votes.

The $2.6 billion package of cuts was crafted at the last minute by the Democratic leadership concerned it could not stop the drive for even deeper reductions.

It provides for cuts of $600 million from defense; $670 million from transportation programs and $373 million from foreign aid, with the rest spread throughout different departments.

With the support of the Clinton administration, the leadership had originally proposed allowing the deficit to rise rather than pay for any of the assistance.

Russia shares science mission

by Marcia Dunn
The Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. -- Discovery rose with the sun and launched a new space age Thursday, carrying the first Russian into orbit aboard a U.S. shuttle.

The head of Russia's space program praised the prompt, and perfect, liftoff, considered a prelude to a shared space station and maybe, some day, a joint trip to Mars.

"We're going to change the whole way we look at space. We're going to do it together, instead of competing," said NASA Administrator Daniel Goldin.

Discovery blasted off at dawn, piercing a clear sky on its way to a 218-mile orbit. The rising sun gave the huge clouds of vapor left in the shuttle wake a pale orange glow.

Senate may deny funds

Agencies will lose money for barring prayer

by Carole Feldman
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- Acquiescing to an appeal by Sen. Jesse Helms, the Senate agreed Thursday to deny federal funds to state or local agencies that bar constitutionally protected prayer in public schools.

"You can pinpoint when the decline of this country actually began," Helms, R-N.C., said, referring to a 1962 Supreme Court decision prohibiting prayer in public school. "Morality has been all but forgotten and scoffed at in some circumstances."

He satisfied concerns of senators by modifying the language in the proposal to ensure that it would apply only to prayer protected by the Constitution. Student or religious groups are allowed to conduct prayer meetings in public schools before or after school hours if the school also allows non-religious groups to meet.

The 75-22 vote came as the Senate debated the Goals 2000 education bill, which would write into law the national education goals agreed to in 1989 by then-President Bush and the nation's governors.

The legislation would provide $400 million in federal grants for states and local governments that want to reform their education programs.

Some senators argued that the Helms' amendment went too far in mandating how school districts must act. "I don't think we should be shoving the school districts around," said Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo.

Danforth, an Episcopal priest, offered an amendment encouraging local school boards to suggest a brief daily period of silence for students.

The Senate was scheduled to vote on that proposal Friday.

Debate on the Goals 2000 legislation focused Thursday on the issues of school prayer and violence.

By voice vote the Senate authorized $75 million in grants to the school districts most troubled by high rates of crime and violence for the current year and $100 million for next year.

"Students are never going to learn if they fear for their safety, teachers are never going to be able to teach if they have to be on the outlook for guns and knives in their classrooms and schools are never going to be able to provide their students with all of the tools of learning if their budgets are drained by security devices and police officers in their corridors," said Sen. Chris Dodd, D-Conn., the sponsor.

The measure would allow schools to develop their own plans to prevent violence, including metal detectors, security personnel and programs to address root causes of violence.

Dodd cited statistics demonstrating that "violence in our schools has become a fact of life." Among them: one in five students carries a weapon to school and 3 million crimes occur on or near school campuses each year.

Helms said his amendment "assures students their right to constitutionally protected voluntary prayer." He said it does not force school districts to allow school prayer prohibited by the Supreme Court.

At the request of several senators, Helms added the words "constitutionally protected" in his reference to prayer.

Ruminski has broken hand

Indefinite loss of center leaves first-place standing in doubt

by Mike Kazimore
assistant sports editor

The men's basketball team will limp into Kent on Saturday to face the Golden Flashes at 7:30 p.m.

The Falcons have recently been hit with a rash of injuries — most notably Shane Kline-Ruminski's broken hand — which he suffered in BG's 84-74 victory against Eastern Michigan Wednesday night. Kline-Ruminski will be out indefinitely.

Other injuries include Shane Komives' pulled groin muscle, Jay Larranaga's sprained ankle and Antonio Daniels' hip injury. BG head coach Jim Larranaga said that injuries are part of the game and that his team would just have to play through them like everybody else.

"If you look around the league, every team is playing with injuries," Larranaga said. "There's nothing you can do except to make sure that the players try to rehabilitate them [injuries] and keep playing as hard as you can every night."

When the wounded Falcons (12-5 overall and 7-2 in the MAC) face Kent State (9-8, 4-5) they will have one thing working in their favor — i revenge.

BG will be looking to avenge an earlier 65-62 loss to KSU at Anderson Arena. At the time it was the Falcons' first league loss of the year.

"Kent State beat us in the first round of games so we expect a hard-fought battle Saturday," Larranaga said.

Upsets provide parity to league

by Rusty Miller
The Associated Press

Ask a Mid-American Conference coach a question, any question, and he's likely to somehow turn the answer into a soliloquy on parity and balance in basketball today.

But that's not too surprising, seeing how someone has apparently declared it open season on MAC leaders.

Coaches in the MAC don't feel all that secure these days, whether it's because they respect every opponent so much or because each is aware of his own team's flaws.

Nobody is dominating anyone else. Even the bottom-rung teams have had their moments. Take into consideration two recent games:

On Wednesday night, dreadful Akron hosted first-place Miami. Akron was the only winless team in league play and hadn't tasted victory since Dec. 30, a string of eight losses in a row. Miami, on the other hand, had won nine of 10 games over the same period.

So the Zips promptly blew away Miami 72-68, shooting 58 percent in the second half and 52 percent for the game. They didn't trail the last 25 minutes of play.

Landon Hackim, Miami's streak-shooting guard, was averaging 19 points a game. Against Akron, he missed all six field-goal attempts and all three free throws to go scoreless.

Bowling Green, tied for first place, played at Central Michigan Jan. 26. Central came in at a hardly robust 2-12 overall and 1-5 in the MAC, while the Falcons were 10-4 and 5-1.

But Rob DeCook scored 18 points and Central overcame 42 percent shooting to knock the Falcons out of first, 58-53.

If those two instances aren't harrowing enough for the contenders, consider that two of the top teams in the MAC —

Bowling Green and preseason favorite Western Michigan — are playing without their best players. Leon McGee of Western has a broken foot and is expected to miss most if not all of the rest of the season.

Then Bowling Green found out Thursday that Shane Kline-Ruminski, who had scored a career-high 27 points in an 84-74 victory over Eastern Michigan the night before, would be lost for most of the year with a broken shooting hand.

Women face slipping Kent Coach predicts home win for women's track

by Mark Leonard DeChant
sports editor

This one may have lost a little luster.

The women's basketball matchup between Kent and Bowling Green is traditionally one of the most exciting and important in the Mid-American Conference.

While Saturday's game may prove to be exciting, Kent's recent struggles have certainly diminished its importance.

The Golden Flashes, after losing to Ohio Wednesday, are fourth in the MAC with a 5-4 mark (11-5 overall).

BG (8-1, 14-3) enters the second half of league action trailing

Toledo (9-0) for first place honors.

Kent was a third-place preseason pick in the MAC, and was generally considered to be one of the three teams — along with BG and UT — with a legitimate shot at the title.

Now, with four league losses only halfway through the schedule, the Flashes have removed themselves from regular-season contention.

Falcon head coach Jaci Clark said Kent will nonetheless have plenty of motivation for Saturday's game.

"They've got to get back on track," Clark said. "And I think they've been waiting for this

Ryan replaces Bugel

by Mel Reisner
The Associated Press

TEMPE, Ariz. — The punch is past, and Buddy's back as a boss in the NFL.

A month after slugging a coaching colleague during the Houston Oilers final regular-season game, Buddy Ryan was hired Thursday as coach and general manager of the Phoenix Cardinals.

"You've got a winner in town," said Ryan, the Oilers defensive coordinator last season. "We're looking forward to winning. So today we start."

Ryan, who coached the Philadelphia Eagles from 1986-90 and led them to the playoffs three times, signed a four-year contract. He replaces Joe Bugel, who was fired Jan. 24 after a 7-9 season in which he failed to deliver on an ultimatum by owner Bill Bidwill to produce a winner.

Ryan's stock was believed to have dropped considerably after he punched offensive coordinator Kevin Gilbride during a nationally televised game.

Hockey hosts pair of CCHA cellar dwellers

by Brian Mart
News sports writer

After slugging it out with the best that the Central Collegiate Hockey Association has to offer over the past three weeks, the Falcons get a shot at the teams at the other end of the standings this weekend.

BG (11-11-2 overall, 9-8-2 in the CCHA) will host the University of Illinois-Chicago on Friday before taking on Ohio State on Saturday. Both games will begin at 7 p.m. at the BGSU Ice Arena.

The Falcons completed their toughest stretch of the season last Friday, losing 8-1 to Michigan State. During the streak, they played 5 consecutive games against MSU, Michigan, and Lake Superior — three of the top six teams in the nation.

Unfortunately, BG lost four of those five games, and has dropped nine of its last twelve as well.

UIC (6-19-1 overall, 5-14-1 league) and OSU (2-17-4, 1-15-4) may be just what the doctor ordered for the Falcons. They occupy the bottom two slots in the CCHA standings, and BG has had success against both squads this season — going 4-1-0 against the pair.

That does not mean, however, that the Falcons are taking the contests lightly.

"It's too easy to say we've played the toughest teams in the country on successive weekends and all of a sudden now we're going to play teams where we can just show up and win," Falcon coach Jerry York said.

The struggling Falcon offense will finally get a chance to face goaltenders who aren't named Shields, Lacher, or Buzak — the three netminders who have stymied BG over the last few weeks.

Tom Askey started the season in the net for the Buckeyes and has rarely come out since. He ranks third in the CCHA in minutes logged and fourth in games played. However, his 4.15 goals against average ranks only seventh.

Jeff Featherstone took over between the pipes for UIC in early February and has become their regular goaltender. His goals against average of 4.61 ranks him tenth in the CCHA.

Both UIC and OSU rely on balanced scoring. The Buckeyes are led by Steve Richards (3 goals - 16 assists - 19 points) and Joe Sellers (8-9-17). Ron White leads the team with 10 goals.

The Flames' leading scorers are Mike Peron (14-9-23), Mark Zdan (9-13-22), and Derek Knorr (14-7-21).

The Falcons hold an impressive 39-10-3 mark in their overall series with UIC, and an 73-34-3 advantage over OSU — BG's oldest CCHA rival.

Since returning from a knee injury in early January, right wing Jason Helbing has scored five goals in his last eight games. For the season, Helbing is now tied for second on the team in goals (9), despite missing nine games.

Head coach Jerry York needs just three victories to tie former Denver coach Murray Armstrong for 8th place in the NCAA's all-time win list with 462 conquests.

The Fieldhouse is the sight where the BG men's and women's track teams will take on Akron, Ashland and Central Michigan Saturday.

The starting time for the meet is 11:30 a.m.

"This is going to be an exciting and close meet," head coach Sid Sink said.

Scott Thompson, a provisional qualifier for the NCAA championships, will be returning from an injury to run in the 55 hurdles, 55 dash and the 200.

Brad Schaser, coming off a fine performance last week, will be running in the mile and the 3000-meter run.

Shawn Blanchett, who came back from an injury last week and did well, will be running in the 55-meter dash and the 200-meter dash.

According to Sink, the Falcons are ready for Saturday's meet.

"We appear to be healthy, and we should do well at our last indoor home meet," he said.

What does head coach Steve Price think of the Lady Falcons' chances on Saturday?

"We will win the meet," Price said.

Laura Hall, a freshman distance runner, is questionable to run Saturday because of a knee and calf problem.

Freshman sprinter Clarice Gregory is suffering from shin splints and may not be able to compete.

Freshman long distance runner Amy Breidenbach may not compete Saturday because of an iron deficiency.

Central Michigan will be the main competition for the Lady Falcons.

"Akron and Ashland have a few strong individual athletes," Price said. "But they will not compete with us in the team standings."

Olerud resigns to $17 mil deal

by Ronald Blum
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — John Olerud, who led the American League in hitting last year, jumped into the top 15 in salary Thursday while Norm Charlton, Jody Reed and Henry Cotto found new teams.

Olerud, who hit .363 last season with 24 homers and 107 RBIs, agreed to a $17 million, three-year contract with the Toronto Blue Jays. The deal has an option for 1997 that would give the first baseman $22.5 million over four years.

The deal's annual average value of $5,666,667 is the 15th highest in the major leagues, but Olerud said he and his wife, Kelly, were trying to be low key.

"All winter long, we've just been working on our house down here," he said from his home in Phoenix. "We'll have a nice evening at home and I'm sure we'll do something to celebrate. I don't have any big plans for any big purchases."

With the start of spring training just two weeks away, Charlton signed with the Philadelphia Phillies, Reed signed with the Milwaukee Brewers and Henry Cotto signed with the Baltimore Orioles. The Orioles also signed Rene Gonzales and Mark Williamson.

Club decimates opponents

by Andrew Punzal
News contributing writer

The Bowling Green women's club volleyball team recently participated in a three-school tournament at Michigan State, competing against Grand Valley State University and Michigan State University. The Falcons had the best outing of their brief history, winning all four of their matches and dominating the competition. Bowling Green outscored its opponents by a combined score of 45-29, and were never in jeopardy of defeat.

The Falcons put on a hitting display as they turned in an impressive offensive performance as they pounded out 41 kills over four games. The average margin of victory was eight points as they dominated Grand Valley 15-6, 15-9, before sweeping a tough MSU team in dramatic fashion 15-2 and 15-12.

"We finally played like we're capable of," head coach Jeff Merrill said. "We talked all week about changing our mental framework to remain positive and focused throughout the match, and our victory today proves we did that."

Offensively, the Falcons were led by senior hitter Steph Greer who recorded a team-high eight kills and six service aces and junior hitter Shay Cooke who blasted out seven kills in her return from a shoulder injury. Senior co-captain hitter Cathy Buynacek turned in another strong all-around performance, contributing seven kills, 13 blocks, 10 digs and a service ace.

"We finally played as a whole team," senior co-captain Lisa Gerrasch said afterward. "Our intensity level was high all afternoon and we had fun playing. It's a great feeling to finally have played up to our potential and go home undefeated."

On the defensive side, freshman hitter Janelle Bassitt had a strong outing, recording a team- and season-high of 14 digs in just four games. Junior backrow spe-

"When everyone is on the same wavelength, good things happen."

Jeff Merrill, club volleyball coach cialists Colleen Bury and Jen Eden also turned in solid performances with consistent passing and serving.

"Our intensity level during games has improved 200 percent since last weekend," Eden said. "Our defensive front line dominated Grand Valley and Michigan State's hitters by blocking everything they hit."

"Our performance today was the best we've had this year," Bassitt said. "Everyone played hard and the team's desire really showed. If we continue to play with this much enthusiasm, we should be extremely competitive in the future."

"When everyone on the team is on the same wavelength, good things happen," Merrill continued. "We have now won six games in a row dating back to our tournament at Miami, and our confidence is at a season high. Hopefully we will maintain this intensity and let it snowball for the rest of the season."

Falcons will not win MAC

Halfway through the Mid-American Conference regular season schedule, the men's basketball squad finds itself in some unfamiliar territory - first place.

Are they for real? Obviously! They own a 7-2 MAC record.

Now on to the important question. Will they win the MAC? No.

Don't get me wrong - I would like to see the Falcons enjoy a title as much as the next guy, but there are still many roadblocks along the way.

As I mentioned earlier, BG is also fighting against history on their run toward the MAC title.

BG - during head coach Jim Larranaga's seven-year tenure - has finished only as high as third in the MAC. During that span the Falcons fashioned a 58-56 MAC record.

With that in mind, why would this year be any different?

People tell me, "this year's different, they have more talent than in the past."

I would agree with the fact that they have talent this year, but the 1989-90 squad had talent enough to defeat nationally-ranked Michigan State but couldn't win the MAC.

Ironically, in the big picture it doesn't really matter if the Falcons win the MAC regular season title. All that gets you is a mere pat on the back.

Winning the MAC tournament is essentially the only way MAC squads make the big '64 team' dance in March.

The NCAA tournament committee rarely selects two MAC schools. With the Falcons' non-conference slate featuring the likes of Findlay, Defiance and Tiffin, they won't even get a second look from the committee.

So there you have it. Why I think the Falcons won't win the MAC, and why it really doesn't matter.

John Boyle is a sports writer for The News.

John Boyle

The Falcons are fighting against some tough road games - namely a return engagement with the Miami Redskins in Oxford and a visit to Athens to visit Trent and the rest of the Ohio University Bobcats - as well as history in the second half of the season.

I realize that BG has already defeated both MU and OU, but those contests were at home within the friendly confines of Anderson Arena. Road games in any conference are difficult to win.

The Falcons also have two tough home games remaining against the always-dangerous Ball State and pre-season favorite Western Michigan.

Swimming hosts Ball State

The swimming teams host their final dual meet of the season when they take on the Ball State Cardinals this Saturday at home. Both meets should provide the Falcons with cut-throat competition. Heading into the meet, the men have a record of 3-6 (0-4 in the Mid-American Conference). The women have a solid record of 5-4-1 (1-2-1 in the MAC).

One of the most exciting swimmers this year for the men has been co-captain and three-year letter-winner Kevin Grotke. A senior from Sylvania, Grotke has set two school records already this year.

In the 100-yard breaststroke Grotke has posted a lifetime best time of 55.73, over a second faster than his best time last year. In the 200-yard breaststroke, he swam a 2:01.44 to qualify as the 10th fastest time in the nation in college swimming. While at the U.S. Open in December, Grotke swam the same events in short course meters and gained world-class status. His time of 1:02.32 in the 100-meter breaststroke was the eighth-fastest time in the world at the time of the meet. There, he took an overall second in the event behind Olympian Roque Santos and placed fourth in the 200-meter event with a time of 2:16.12.

The women have top performers Josie McCulloch and Cheryl Patten to lead them.

McCulloch recently swam the 100 breaststroke in 1:04.15, just short of her lifetime best time, ranking her 15th overall in the country.

Patten has the team's fastest times in six different events this season. Those events are: 200 freestyle, 200 fly, 100 freestyle, 200 backstroke, 500 freestyle and 200 individual medley.

Her times in the 200 fly and 200 individual medley are also the fastest in the conference. Ball State comes to town with very impressive records. The men's team is 8-2 (2-2 in the MAC). The women are 9-2 (2-2 in the conference).

pete with the top teams in the league."

So far, Kent has failed in that category, as three of their losses have come at the hands of Toledo, third-place OU and, earlier in the season, the Falcons.

BG handled Kent easily in their first contest, 108-91 at Anderson

Arena. BG led by as much as 20 points in the second half, and never by less than 14.

If anything can save the Flashes from another blowout, it is the comfort of Memorial Athletic and Convention Center, where they play their home games.

Kent is a perfect 6-0 at home, including 4-0 in MAC play.

"It's always tough to win on their court," Clark said. "We'll need a high level of concentration."

BG's defensive concentration will fall upon two areas: the perimeter and center Tracey Lynn.

Kent leads the league in scoring (90.1 ppg) and scoring margin (+14.4), and much of this is due to the Flashes' outside attack. They are averaging over eight three-pointers per game, and six players have converted at least 13 treys.

Lynn, a 6-foot senior, is scoring 18.4 points per game in the post and hauling in 7.9 rebounds. This inside-outside combination can render a zone defense useless, especially if Kent's three-pointers are falling.

"We want to put a lot of defensive pressure on them," Clark said. "And really play hard in the half-court game. We also have to take care of the ball."

Injuries

One of the keys to the Golden Flashes' victory at BG was that they were able to control the tempo throughout the course of the game. In order for the Falcons to be successful, Larranaga feels that they must increase the speed of the contest.

"It's difficult to make a team like Kent speed up when they're playing well," Larranaga said.

Tirade fuels Hoosier win

by Hank Lowenkron
The Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Indiana coach Bob Knight demands discipline from his players. Sometimes, he fails to get it from himself.

Amid the coaching accomplishments of three NCAA championships, 11 Big Ten titles, an Olympic gold medal and 632 college victories there has been a series of temper tantrums.

The latest took place Wednesday when he was ejected in the second half after receiving two technicals for a series of nose-to-nose, profanity-laced tirades at the officials. The Hoosiers won in overtime 87-83.

It's the third time this season that Knight, who became the center of an international incident when he was arrested during the Pan American Games in 1979 for allegedly hitting a policeman, overshadowed the outcome of a game.

On Nov. 21, he was ejected from an exhibition game with Athletes In Action after accumulating two technicals. He was suspended for one game in December by Indiana after a verbal exchange with Hoosier fans who booed him to express their displeasure over his allegedly kicking a player — his son, Pat Knight — when he made a turnover.

The Big Ten said Thursday it planned no further discipline against Knight for the latest incident, which some observers believe was a tool to motivate a team that was struggling.

"There will be no action," Big Ten assistant commissioner Mark Rudner said. "It was a game situation, missed according to the rules calling for bench decorum. ... Our office will receive a report from the officials. He was ejected and that's going to be it as far as we're concerned."

"I thought it got the crowd into it," Ohio State coach Randy Ayers said of the ejection.

Ohio State's Lawrence Funderburke is no stranger to Knight's temper. The former Indiana player left the team after six games as a freshman when Knight threw him out of a practice.

"That was a little ploy, what he did, sort of to motivate the team and the crowd," Funderburke said. "When I was here he would leave practice, and that made us work that much harder in practice."

The Hoosiers certainly went to work after their leader left the court Wednesday night. Trailing 49-38 moments after Knight was ejected with 15:32 to play, the Hoosiers responded with 10 consecutive points in a 2:07 span to get back into the game.

"As the game wore on, particularly in the last 16 of 17 minutes of the game, I thought the Indiana coaching got a lot better," Knight said. "I thought the officiating must have been better, also."

Dan Dakich, an assistant to Knight who also played for him, credits the players for Wednesday's triumph that gave Indiana a share of first place in the Big Ten.

"That's the thing that coach Knight always talks about, with the team, particularly seniors. You have three seniors playing out there, you have them playing as hard as they can. You have them elevating everybody else," Dakich said.

Damon Bailey, Pat Graham and Todd Leary are the seniors and all three played every minute after the technicals.

Louisville rolls over NC Charlotte

LOUISVILLE, Ky. -- Tick Rogers ignited a 13-4 spurt at the close of the first half with two baskets off steals as No. 9 Louisville won its seventh straight game, a 76-55 victory over North Carolina Charlotte on Thursday night.

UNCC (9-6, 2-3 Metro Conference) trailed 20-17 when Andre Davis hit a short jumper with 6:44 remaining in the half.

Rogers stole an inbounds pass from the baseline and drove three quarters the length of the court for a layup. He followed that with a midcourt steal and a dunk to give Louisville (17-2, 7-1) a 24-17 lead with 4:20 left.

UNCC turned the ball over on its next two possessions, which led to two free throws and a dunk by Louisville's Clifford Rozier for a nine-point advantage.

UNCC's Jarvis Lang scored on a hook shot, but Louisville's De-

Juan Wheat countered with a 3-pointer and a layup after a steal to widen the margin to 12 points. Rozier led Louisville with 23 points and 12 rebounds.

Williams not indicted

CINCINNATI -- A Hamilton County grand jury on Thursday declined to indict former Philadelphia Phillies pitcher Mitch Williams after hearing allegations that Williams raped a woman he met in a bar in September.

The grand jury said it was unconvinced by evidence offered by prosecutors on behalf of the woman, who was not identified.

Williams, who gave up the home run that won last year's World Series, said previously he had taken a lie detector test to support his denial of the allegation.

Cincinnati police had acknowledged they were investigating the allegation by a northern Kentucky woman who said Williams raped her at a Cincinnati hotel.

'Who Coehrs'

Bernie, Barfly and Dave

Who Coehrs?

by Dave Coehrs

All I wanted was to talk with Bernie. Instead, I got trapped by The Barfly From The Pits Of Hell.

Bernie's real name is Bernice, and she's the coolest bartender I know. Sometimes she'll look the other way when I pick all of the lip-smacking crunchy things out of the bar mix, and she automatically knows I can only afford the cheap beer she keeps in back of the cooler, the kind you get in a 12-pack for 79 cents. If you suck on a lemon slice between sips it hardly tastes at all like something you know is killing millions of brain cells each hour.

Bernie tries hard to be understanding when I drink a few of these beers and start to get all weepy and sentimental, telling her she's my very best friend forever, and how I love her, but not like "that" so her husband doesn't have to know, and how I always wanted to be a lumberjack, but I hate maple syrup, and how, when I have a son, I'm going to name him Skippy no matter what anyone thinks, and how I'd appreciate it if she'd tell Dwayne, the cross-eyed dishwasher, to stop staring at me from the kitchen.

You don't find them sharper than Bernie. You never see her flipping through a bartender's manual; if you want a Rum Booger, Bernie can make one. Don't even try to trick her by insisting that a Rum Booger has anything in it but Rum Booger ingredients. She'll just roll her eyes and tell you to grow up and get your ugly head off the bar before she calls a bouncer.

Last weekend I went to see Bernie because we hadn't talked in awhile and I wanted the lip-smacking crunchy things.

"Bernie!" I said, hoping for a hug. "Stay the hell out of the crunchy things," she said. "I've missed you!" I told her. "If you cry tonight I'll let the bouncer punch you," she said. "And don't you dare ask me to pull your finger."

Bernie left to get me a cheap beer so I looked around at the barroom wild-life. The guy on my left was busy trying to fit his girlfriend's entire face into his mouth, so I turned to my right.

You'd probably never imagine asking "How's it going?" would make you prefer to be tortured in a Turkish prison, or wish someone would just end your misery by driving a dull railroad spike through your skull. I'll bet a lot of mysterious bar fatalities involving railroad spikes could be attributed to talking with the man on my right: The Barfly From The Pits Of Hell. "How's it going?" I said to him, the way you do when you're trying to mooch a drink off of somebody.

"I have high blood pressure," he told me. "My doctor said if I burp I could explode."

"No kidding," I said.

I wanted to run. I knew I was about to face the most horrible bar experience imaginable -- even worse than Michael Bolton Karaoke Night -- and I couldn't do anything to stop it. I swear I heard the theme from "Jaws" come out of the jukebox.

He was The Barfly From The Pits Of Hell, and he was winding up to tell his Life Story. In my greed for 79-cent beer, I was snagged and pulled in like a brain-damaged trout.

"It's a hereditary burping thing," he said. "Dad was killed by a Slurpee."

Dear God, rescue me, I prayed.

"It's genetic," he said. "It's caused by pulpy veins. Dad had pulpy veins, Mom has pulpy veins, and my brother Maurice has really pulpy veins..."

He was like a butch Chatty Cathy doll. My ears were starting to smoke.

"...and even my dog had pulpy veins. Scrappy little thing named Hard-ing. She busted her little doggy knee and fell through some ice and drowned. I don't miss her much. That happened right after my girlfriend left me for a carnival worker. He has black teeth and one eyebrow, and he gave her free rides on the Tilt-A-Whirl." Shut up, shut up, SHUT UP!

"She has strong thighs. She used to open ketchup bottles with them. Pickle jars, too. I mean, you could screw the lids on real tight and she'd pop them right off. I swear, you could watch her all night. We got thrown out of restaurants a lot. She has a glass eye that wiggles. Looking at it when she gets the hiccups will make the hair on your neck stand up. She broke up with me when I was in my coma. There I am, in a coma, and my girlfriend runs off with the Tilt-A-Whirl guy, all my Hank Williams Jr. tapes and my unrated version of Basic Instinct. You know, the bar mix here never has those lip-smacking crunchy things..."

I was trying to suffocate him with bar napkins when Bernie came back with my beer.

"Stay the hell out of my bar napkins," she said. "And stop crying."

"But he won't shut up," I sobbed.

"Hey, aren't you that loser with the pulpy veins?" she asked him suspiciously. "I thought I threw you out of here. BOUNCER!"

Like I said, Bernie's the coolest. On her day off I'm going to buy her all the Rum Boogers she can drink. If she has enough, she might pull my finger.

Dave Coehrs recently emigrated from Germany, the home of the original Rum Booger.

Buckle up, sports fans, for the first ever, uncensored, unabated Insider road trip. That's right, folks, Insider travel specialists Scott DeKatch, Joe Peiffer, Sam Melendez and Mike Cook tanked up the MikeMobile and headed out to Punxsutawney, Pa. for the big Groundhog Day shindig. They promised us Willard Scott, Loni Anderson and Joe Namath and we got ... well ... turn to page six.

Melinda Monhart does theatre again and our own Amy Deeb (of the New Jersey Deebs) hits a pizza party/exchange thing. We got Rock Gossip and a cool, touching letter from Giraffe Boy's Christian Brandt.

We also have 20 questions with BG News editor Kirk "The Terminator" Pavelich. Last week's interview with Jim Tinker was well-received by our readers.

And we have the debut of a new column by resident nonstop writer Dave Coehrs, titled "Who Cares?" All here in the mag. Probing the stretches of Pennsylvania, we're Insider.

About Not Playing the Guitar

I've never eaten a jungle as thick as the one my hair's become.

I love to eat my hair. I took my Telecaster downtown where I saw the man in the street. His gloves had worn through so I saw his sweet, wet fingertips and stopped to talk.

He must have been a father because he said he had played guitar like a blind man and I was longing. This man who sat in the doorway and watched the cars bump in traffic. I am not mean spirited.

What's the use of becoming the girl Johnny Marr? Why have I these steel strings to make my fingers bleed when this man could be playing brahms for his children still sleeping by his wife still waiting for him to bring home dinner? You look hungry, I said to him, and offered him my hair.

Twenty Questions ...

Meet the Captain

Kirk Pavelich, editor of The BG News, came into his job with a lot of work to do, namely regaining credibility lost over the last few semesters. We think he's done a fine job. The Captain, as he is known by his workers, sat down with Mike Cook and talked about things.

May I call you "Chief?"

Yeah, go ahead.

Those new headline fonts are lookin' pretty good. Your idea?

The new headline fonts? Partially.

The BG News kicks the hell out of the Sentinel-Tribune, doesn't it?

Yes.

Congressman Martin Hoke: What's his deal, anyway?

Obviously, not knowing when the TV cameras are on. Are these answers supposed to be short?

Doesn't matter. How's the Tribe going to do this year?

The Tribe is going to win the Central.

Going to Opening Day?

Uh, no. But we're going to the exhibition game.

So, you were on Jason T. Jackson's radio show.

How did that make you feel?

It was a great thrill.

Ever get any hate mail?

Yes.

If Olscamp retires, who should replace him?

Swampy.

I'm your agent. In my left hand, I hold a contract proposal that offers you a reoccurring role on Melrose Place. In my right hand, I hold a similar contract from Beverly Hills 90210. Which one do you take?

Melrose Place ... because Melrose Place has Allison.

We hear you are named Kirk after Capt. Kirk from Star Trek. Any truth to that?

Yes.

How does that make you feel?

Makes me feel like a Trekkie.

Are you?

No.

Grounds for Thought, Cosmo's or Cafe Shadeau?

I have never been to any of them. Don't like coffee.

Who's the best athlete in Bowling Green?

Susie Cassell.

When is The BG News going to full color?

On a permanent basis? Not in this century.

Reubens: Age of or sandwich?

Rye.

Tonya Harding and Lorrena Bobbit are locked in a room with only a box of weapons. Who comes out alive?

Lorrena Bobbit.

Before you, who was the best editor of The BG News?

Jill Novak.

Anything else?

No.

University offers exchange plan

by Amy Deeb
California Dreamin'

Has the cold winter weather in Bowling Green been too much to handle lately? Are snow shoes, gloves, and ear muffs items in your wardrobe you could do without for a season? Is the heating bill too high this month? If you've answered yes to most of these questions then maybe you should look into the National Student Exchange.

Imagine yourself sitting in classrooms overlooking a rocky coastline, studying on the beach or reading your marketing text poolside. The University is actually part of a program that can whisk you away from the wintry winds and ice storms that can deny students a proper education. (Although our wishes to miss a few classes this semester have been the only things denied.)

For almost a decade, The University has offered a program that allows students to take classes at other universities and colleges for a very good deal. If you've completed your freshman year with a 2.5 GPA or better, have full-time student status and are in good standing -- whatever that means -- with the University, you can be a part of a great opportunity.

BGSU is the only university in Ohio and Michigan to offer the National Student Exchange program, so you can spend a semester or an entire year at your choice of over 100 schools nationally. Leslie Rapp, the NSE publicist, took advantage of the program and spent a semester at Northern Arizona University in the fall of 1992. Ever since then she has been a part of NSE.

"I loved the mountains and really wanted to see the West, it was an amazing experience and I made so many friends," Rapp said. Leslie only spent a semester in Arizona and encouraged anyone who joined the program to spend a year at their chosen school.

Museum offers major exhibit

by Julie Michalak
artsy fartsy

It is very seldom that any of us get the chance to enter into another time, another era, or period in our lifetime. However, this is not the case at the Toledo Museum of Art. For they are proposing an opportunity for anyone to travel back to the 17th century with their new art exhibit, The Age of Rubens.

The age of Rubens is an exhibit organized by the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston and has made it to The Toledo Art Museum, the only place west of Boston where it will be shown. It features 57 notable artists such as: Anthony van Dycke, Jacob Jordeans and Frans Snyders; with the mani focus on Peter Paul Rubens.

One of Rubens' most infamous works is titled, "The Garden of Love." This piece, which hangs on the far wall in the Red Gallery, is across the Atlantic Ocean for the first time. It has been described as "the greatest in European Art," which depicts Rubens life, love and status at the time he completed it.

One way to look at this exhibition and which sums up what this exhibition does is to consider these 17th century paintings as is it were its own solar system and swuare in the center of it, generating enormous heat andf energy is the person and artistic talent, Peter Paul Rubens. The other artists are like planets; circling around Rubens, important in their own right.

"It puts students in direct confrontation with one amazing mind. It challenges students to ask: Do I like it? Why do I like it? Is there a purpose to this painting? Could I do better?"

Larry Nichols, curator

Larry Nichols, curator and promoter of The Toledo Museum of Art, commented on college students viewing the exhibit. "It puts students in direct confrontation with one amazing mind. It challenges students to ask: Do I like it? Why do I like it? Is there a purpose to this painting? Could I do better?"

Also, to encourage students to attend the exhibit, The Toledo Museum of Art has lowered the price from $7.95 to $5.95 with a valid student I.D. and free to Toledo Museum of Art members. The exhibition hours are Tuesday through Thursday 11am to 9pm; Saturday and Sunday 10am to 5pm and closed Mondays. For tickets call (419) 243-7000 or (800) 374-0667.

The Age of Rubens, breathtaking, challenging and a desert for the eyes, will only be gracing the City of Toledo until April 24.

You Dirty Rat!!!

Insider hits the road to Punxsutawney, home of Groundhog Day

by Scott DeKatch
Joe Peiffer
Sam Melendez
and Mike Cook

It was all the Police Division's fault. We wanted to do a ride-along, but the chief wasn't around and those guys wouldn't move without him. We were perplexed, folks. We couldn't give you blank pages this morning.

So Peiffer, DeKatch and co. were stuck sitting around the 'ratcage,' wondering what to do? "There's a soul kitchen in Harshman," Peiffer said.

"Yeah, but is that a two-page feature?" DeKatch asked.

"Groundhog Day's coming up," a strange voice said.

"Yeah," Peiffer said. "Don't they do that in Pennsylvania?"

"Sure do," DeKatch said. He called Fact Line. "They say it's two hours east of my Mom's place in Youngstown."

"You asked them how far it was from your Mom's place?"

"Hey, they're Fact Line ..."

"Borrowing from an ancient European legend, 'For as the sun shines on Candlemas Day, so far will the snow swirl 'til May,' the seed for the now famous Feb. 2 celebration was planted in 1886 when Groundhog Day was first recognized in Punxsutawney, Pa.

"In the autumn of 1899 a half dozen Punx'y citizens, the nucleus of the 'Groundhog Club,' first gathered on a nearby mountain and ate groundhog. In succeeding years, thousands flocked to the 'Home of the Groundhog' to participate in this celebrated end-of-summer feast ..."

Joe called the Punxsutawney, Pa. Chamber of Commerce, who promised press passes, Willard Scott, Loni Anderson, Joe Namath and a rockin' good time. We fired up the MikeMobile, bought some munchies and headed out on the first leg of our trip, a stop-off in Youngstown to say hello to Mom, eat and meet Scott's sister, Julie the Troubled Teen.

But we first had to stop at Rodgers Quadrangle to steal an ATM card and the latest issue of Penthouse magazine from Joe's friend Gleek, the Space Monkey. Then we hit the highway.

"You guys'll love this," Sam promised, cueing up a copy of Paste's "This is the Season." "It's a sex fight song. The women love it."

"Take me this way baby,

Take me now."

So our three-hour drive was pretty uneventful.

Then we got into Youngstown.

"This freeway is messed up," Cook said, taking the turnoff to I-680.

"Well, when your town's run by organized crime, you're gonna have some messed up zoning," DeKatch said. "By the way, don't blink your headlights. This IS gangland."

"Oh yeah?" Cook said. "Snoop Doggy Dogg this!" and flashed his lights.

"You guys know Bernie Kosar played junior high ball right across the street from me?" DeKatch chimed in.

"We're going there," Cook said.

"Now," Sam added.

So we pulled into the driveway of Byzantine Catholic Central Elementary, on the outskirts of Boardman, Ohio. The field was frozen, as it probably was back when that sidearm with the touch for the long-ball was born. Cook ran out onto the field, did a few cartwheels and caught an air-touchdown pass. The rest of us stood there freezing.

As you all know, a road trip is not a road trip, and good journalism is not good journalism, without plenty of alcohol. Our next stop was a BP station in Youngstown. Of course, since we were in Youngstown, the only means for communicating with the attendant was through a one-by-one-half foot opening in his window.

"Hey, can we get beer here?" Mike asked. "We're journalists."

"Yes we are," the rest of us said.

"You can get beer. Where yinz headed?" (NOTE: "Yinz" is an East Ohio/Pennsylvania wonk term for "you all.")

"Uh, Pixaninny," Peiffer said, mispronouncing the word Punxsutawney for the first of several times. "For Groundhog Day."

"Oh, Punxy," the attendant said. "I played minor league ball there. Yinz'll get cultured."

We put the beer on The BG News credit card and thanked the attendant. His name was Sal DoMatto d'Angelo.

We then hit a Perkins restaurant for some cheap coffee and also to find potential friends to go along on our trip.

"Smoking or non-smoking?" the hostess asked us.

"Definitely smoking."

"Cigarette or cigar?"

"Pot."

"All right, come this way."

Our manservant was a fancy lad named Rob. He was illiterate, a fact we became aware of when Peiffer asked him to record a promo for his radio show (insert free "Big Hairy Posse" plug here).

"Uh ... my name is ... uh ... Rob, and we're here in ... uh ... Perkins in ... uh ... Boardman, Ohio and we're eating ... uh ..."

"JUST READ THE FREAKING THING!" we yelled.

"... say, you're kinda cute," Rob said, winking at Peiffer.

"Hey, Peiffer," Sam said. "I'm as straight as a ruler, but Rob's a handsome man."

"Eat me, Melendez," Peiffer said, and we got our act together and went back to the MikeMobile.

We had no map. See, we're journalists (yes, we are), and journalists just know things, like which way it is to Punxsutawney, Pa., where Punxsutawney Phil was eagerly awaiting his moment of glory. Punxsutawney was due East, about a hundred miles, and we would drive over and through anything to get there.

As soon as we got into Pennsylvania, the light disappeared. It was the night the lights went out in Mercer county. "Pay some damn taxes, you and your anti-choice democrat governor," Melendez said.

"When's the speed limit go back to 65?"

"Jersey," DeKatch said. "We're in Amish country, where famous people go to become missing. You know Jimmy Hoffa? D.B. Cooper? Elvis? Amish."

"Yeah," Melendez said. "Jim Morrison, too."

"Yeah, we'll be in Amish country and this fat guy with a beard'll walk up and say 'hey, you want to get some beer and tacos?'" DeKatch said. "I can't wait."

We then pulled off to hit a convenience store for speed and a much-needed bathroom break.

"Do you have speed?" Peiffer asked. "We're journalists."

"Yes we are."

"Yeah, we got speed. Yinz gwin to Punxsutawney fer the hawg?"

"Yes, we're going to Hegemony for the dirt rat," Peiffer yawned, shoving a tape recorder in the attendant's face.

"Would you state your name for the record?"

"Dan."

"Dan, where the hell are we?"

"You are in the seventh circle of Pennsylvania."

"Thanks. Now how 'bout that speed, Dan?"

Needless to say, the speed was just what we tiring journalists (yes, we are) needed to get to Punxsutawney for the groundhog. It was a long, winding, dark, hilly road to nowhere, it seemed. We passed through towns like Space Corners, Cherry Valley and Clintonville.

"You guys know that Indiana, Pa. is about 20 miles south of Punxsutawney?" DeKatch said. "That's where Jimmy Stewart grew up."

"Oh, yes," an orgasmic Melendez rejoiced. "I LOVE Jimmy Stewart." He then went into his best Jimmy Stewart impression: "What is it you want from me, Mary, the Moon? If it is I'll tie a lasso around it and drag it down for ya."

"We'll have to go there on the way back."

We finally pulled into Punxsutawney, a quiet old town with historic houses right up on the road, old-fashioned diners, mini-marts and a cool, Tinkerized downtown.

En route to Phil's festivities we ran into eight Pennsylvania school boys looking for a ride to Gobblers knob, home of the magical groundhog.

"Yinz goin' to the knob," asked a small boy with a mustache that wasn't.

"Yes we are," we replied. "We're journalists."

"So, what's your school's nickname?" DeKatch wondered aloud.

"The Chucks."

"Imagine that," Melendez said.

"Are the people here cool about drinking?" Cook asked.

"Yepper," our prepubescent friends replied.

"I think I've just lost my left testicle," Peiffer whined.

"What kind yinz got?"

"Testicles?" Peiffer spoke in wonderment. "Just the average white man's. Thanks."

!!!

As we pulled into the parking lot of the "Knob," and let the unblossomed youths out of the MikeMobile, we were greeted by a fat, bearded man wearing a frumpy orange body suit.

"Over here, boys."

"We're journalists," we chimed.

"Yes, we are."

"Just park it, boys."

So we filled Melendez' bag with beer, popped our speed, grabbed our notebooks and headed for the promised land.

Off in the distance we spied a group of grown men wearing tuxedos with top hats. This was, of course, the coveted Inner Circle of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club. As we approached the circle, we were met by Chris Lash, Groundhog Proclaimant.

"Hi boys, you're journalists aren't you?" Chris asked, as if he couldn't tell.

"Yes, we are."

"So what brings you to Punxsutawney?" Chris asked as if he didn't know.

We roared our eyes. "I thought this place was called Iggagamey," Peiffer exclaimed.

"Rumor has it Phil is a puppet," Cook asked, getting us off to a good start.

Chris looked as if he was about to implode and become the bright center of our universe. He apparently realized the whole town's economy depended on his answer.

"Good God, no!" he wailed grabbing Cook by the lapels until Peiffer, Melendez and DeKatch could loosen the death grip.

We could see we would get no further until Chris took his medicine, so we moved on.

"Would ya look at this place?" Sam asked, amazed as he took a sip of his now-frozen beer. After all, Chris proudly proclaimed the temperature "a record nine below zero."

"It's Olscamp cold," Melendez commented.

So we headed up to the bonfire determined to make things better. Before we reached the blazing we ran into a group of shirtless frat boys from Penn State.

"Hey shirtless idiots," Peiffer called. "Over here."

Their ring leader, a guy by the name of Jeff Wilson, staggered over.

"You journalists?"

"Yes, we are. Is this your first time in Pixagoofy?" Peiffer asked.

"Yeah, we're groundhog virgins," Jeff said. "But we know the groundhog mating call."

"I bet you do, Jeffy boy," Peiffer said. "How's it go?"

"HEY PHIL, OVER HERE! WOO WOO WOO!"

An impressed Melendez replied, "OK, Jeff. Thanks for playing."

So we moved on to some cute young ladies from Indiana University of Pennsylvania (IUP).

"Hi," we said. "We're journalists."

HOG

"Are we supposed to be impressed?" the good-looking one asked.

"Yes, you are," Peiffer said. "What are you drinking?"

"Zima."

"Who?"

"It's clear beer."

"You mean Miller Lite?"

"No, Zima."

Peiffer then grabbed the bottle, knocking the young lass on her Kerrigan-esque rump. "So where do you live at IUP?" he asked, handing what was left of the bottle to Melendez.

"Room 316 Ulecker Hall."

"We'll see you later," Sam said, dusting off the remaining Zima. "This is delicious. Very refreshing. Thanks, whoever you may be, for this wonderful experience."

"You know, I have a boyfriend."

"They have boys in Taxandspendy?" Peiffer asked.

"You know Joe Namath?"

"Yes, we do."

"We don't," she said. "And by the way, we hear he's not coming."

"HE'S NOT?!!?" we shuddered.

"Willard and Loni canceled, too."

"Who IS here then?"

"Looks like the six of us and those shirtless Penn State Idiots. Not to mention Phil."

Sam cried: Joe wet himself; Scott shotgunned two beers and Mike yelped.

"You mean we drove from Bowling Green, home of the Tractor Pull, flatness and Jim Tinker, for a freaky rat, some shirtless Frat boys, backwoods assholes wearing tophats and two semi-cute IUP coeds?" we all yelled simultaneously.

"Listen to them," they mused. "You'd think they'd come to see the Bills win a game."

We moved on to the main rat-viewing area. It was now 6 a.m. and we were pissed. We tried to get into the inner circle, but the Army shut us down like we were standing in a Mogadishu food line.

to Chris. He knows us."

"Don't think so boys," they smiled. We could tell they had been in The Storm.

"Damn you, we're journalists!" Peiffer yelled. "Talk

So we wandered off disgruntled, freezing and slightly moist. Our beers were frozen and there was no justice in rat town.

We bumped into a man wearing a Steelers jacket and picking his ear with what seemed to be his sixth finger.

"How 'bout them Steelers," DeKatch asked, happy to find a fellow fan.

The man began to growl and spit. He lunged for DeKatch's face.

"So you're from Pittsburgh," Peiffer offered, trying to help.

"Yeppers, home of champions," the man hocked, spraying us with his spittle.

"And in-breeding, apparently," Peiffer quipped, deciding not to ask him to do a promo for The Big Hairy Posse (Insert plug here).

Scared for our lives, we scurried away. We were approached by an elderly lady with a groundhog hat and a Phil watch. We knew we were among friends.

"Hey, aren't yinz boys journalists?"

"Yes, we are."

"Well it's about 7 a.m. You'd better get up front -- Phil'll be here soon."

!!!

At this point in the morning the beer, coffee and speed were guiding our actions. We were crabby and we wanted the rat to stick its head out so we could sleep. We decided never to call Phil by his baptismal name again. Ever. From now on he would be known simply as "rat." One of the Rat-Druids had taken the stage by the den of the beast.

"Boy, this is the best-looking crowd we've had in years," Head rat boy exclaimed.

"We want the rat."

"Are you ready people?"

"Give us the rat."

"Hey Phil lovers, what time is it?"

"It's rat time, you silly fool."

"It's time for the groundhog cheer."

"Die rat-boy, die!"

"Ground Hooog!!!"

"Freaking Raaaat!!!"

"Now we're about to introduce the members of the Puxnsutawney Groundhog Inner Circle."

"You got to be kidding me," Joe exclaimed. "Get on with your lives -- move out of your mother's basement."

"Introducing Rusty Johnson," Rat speaker said.

"Rusty Johnson? I think they have clinics for that,"

DeKatch said confused, but now interested.

"I'm a groundhog, I'm a groundhog... coo coo ca-choo THIS, rat bastards," Melendez said.

"If you love him, SET HIM FREE!!!" Cook hollered.

Just then we noticed two signs in front of us. One reading "Phil the thrill," the other informing us con-
